the spirit of the knight, once a symbol of courage, honor, and virtue, is now embodied in the surry community college knight, the knights of old carried spears and shields, but the twentieth century paladins must fight their enemies, indifference and apathy, armed only with knowledge and understanding, ever seeking a holy grail, brotherhood and peace. it is to this quest that the administration, faculty, board of trustees, students, and friends of surry community college pledge themselves.

mr. ray reed

this yearbook is dedicated to mr. ray reed, who has exemplified the qualities inherent in a truly great teacher. not satisfied with merely instructing, mr. reed forces his students to think, and never fails to recognize any of their achievements.

with a spirit of gratitude and respect we thank mr. reed for his years of unselfish devotion to the young people of this area.

president of the college

behind every successful college, there is a dependable, hard working president who not only leads but inspires. fortunately such a man was available when surry community college ceased being a vague dream and became a concrete reality; mr. i. john krepick is an educator with vision and ability, ability to solve the problems confronting a new educational institution and vision to realize new possibilities for healthy growth and expansion. to president krepick, a wide area of north carolina and virginia owes a deep debt of gratitude for the firmness and steady confidence which made surry community college a highly successful institution.

much work has been done and many sacrifices have been made to put together this history of a year at surry community college, and i, the editor, hope that your memories will be enriched by this yearbook. all the people who contributed time and effort to this tremendous task are too numerous to name, but i should like to offer special thanks to the following:

our advertisers and contributors without whose support this yearbook would not have been possible.

mr. ray reed, our advisor, and mr. sammy allred, our business advisor, for their support, interest, and understanding.

finally to you, the student body, faculty, and administration, for your interest and cooperation.

we have sincerely enjoyed publishing your 1969 lancer. the hours have been endless, the deadlines difficult to meet, but our reward is in your approval. i hope that it will recall your fondest memories of 1968-1969.

your editor and friend, michael church
